THURSDAY—
"THE WHITE TERROR" with Hobart Henley.OPERATORS WHITE POINT FIELD ARE NOT DISCOURAGED*RAPID PROGRESS IN OPERATIONS REPORTED FROM THE FIELD.

Nueces Company to Prospect Oil Strata Encountered at Distance of 1,075 Feet.

Two points for encouragement were the situation at White Point developed yesterday. A denial of the rumor that the Hamill Middlebrook well had been abandoned as a duster by a statement from the company head that the suspension of operations is but a suspension that in no way indicates discouragement by them, and the announced intention by the Nueces Company to price out the oil bearing sand they met at 1,075 feet level, constituting the two points for encouragement.

The drilling crew and the machinery has been removed from the Hamill-Middlebrook well site but the well has not been abandoned as a duster although indications there have been anticipated. Indefinitely. At least thirty days will elapse before any further activity will be noticed at this site and probably sixty days will pass but drilling will be required for its mission of tapping the oil pool indicated at no time. This information comes from Chas. Handel, partner in the company. A drill stem of six other than the one used here is necessary before any further progress downward can be made in this well which is considerably below the 2,000 foot mark, and while this necessity is being filled the crew and implements will be used in operations on the F.M. Wheeler well near town.

It is very probable, although the plan is not yet definitely decided, that the Nueces Company whose still stem was wrenches in again recently just as the probe had reached 2,000 feet, will "pull back" or out to the 1,775 foot level where oil bearing sand approximately twenty feet thick was passed some months ago. This strata showed signs that according to many operators who viewed it a good flow may be had. The company will probably begin at the 2,200 foot depth to which point ten inch casing was set, and drill alongside of the broken stem to the same where the boring process will be used to proxy it out. At this point in the original Nueces well a few feet south of the present hole, a four foot section of solid rock was found, with a small indication, and certainly was last a year ago, but was not developed. In the Hamill Middlebrook well it was encountered again but not probed. Many operators, including some of the best authorities on the subject who viewed the shish from this sand layer, were outspoken in the belief that a quantity flow might be developed from it. A stratum of less thickness has often in other fields proven highly profitable in development, it is said.

The Nueces Company plan, being considered, is to prove it out definitely. This will take a week or more of drilling and the outcome will be watched with keenest interest.

The Sun Company is now the only drilling operators in the field, both cutting wells being off in this activity, the number one sink being still in the grip of trouble with its recently purchased stem, and the number two being idle while the cement around its recent set casting is dried. The Gladys well is waiting on this same process.

Practically the last writing done by Elbert Hubbard before his death was a little booklet called "Character and Cars," an appreciation of Chalmers quality. The story is done in the Pratic immemorial style. He pronounced it one of the best pieces of work that ever came off the Hoover press.

Shortly before engaging passage on the doomed Lusitania, the famous author paid a visit to his friend H. C. Chalmers, White in Detroit. Chalmers made a tour of the Chalmers plant and studied the operations of manufacture.

Always interested in the ways of industry the now factory consummated him.

After his tour of the shop he took the wheel of a new Master Six and drove with Mr. Chalmers through the surrounding country. Upon his return he placed his order for a new Chalmers. He had driven this kind of cars for several years.

Immediately upon his arrival at Elbert Hubbard sat at his desk and wrote the little essay on the Chalmers organization, naming it "Character and Cars."

Hubbard was the ink dry on the first proofs when he and his wife, Alice, left for the war zone on the doomed liner.

Before he sailed Hubbard selected a list of his friends to whom he wished to give the little book "Character and Cars."

He wrote them the following letter:

"You are a lover of beautiful things in a printed way, also you are interested in the fine art of advertising.

These things being true I send you herewith a booklet which I have just sent out for my friend, Mr. Hugh Chalmers.

This is one of the best printed things ever produced at the Hoover shop, as far as the text, please note that while it is an advertisement for an automobile, I do not mention once the words, "transmission" or "magazine."

"Chalmers is my mind is one of the big men of the world, and the car he makes is just as fine as the man. And the price is well within the bounds of reason."

"By the way, I note that you are not on our V.P.A. subscription list. I would highly honored, indeed, to have you make use of the enclosed subscription blank."

The Chalmers Company has secured a large edition of the little masterpiece and is distributing the book gratis to the admirers of Hubbard, who ask for them.
